Vapo-Resolene

(Established 1923)
An Inhalation for Whooping-Cough, Croup,
Bronchitis, Coughs, Diphtheria, Catarrh.

Resolene is a Boon to Asthmatics.
Does it not seem more effective to breathe in a remedy for the lungs than to take it into the stomach?

Resolene cures because the air, rendered sterile by the Vapo-Resolene, is inhaled over the inflamed surface with every breath, giving prolonged and constant treatment. It is invaluable to mothers with small children.

Those of a Convulsive Tendency will find immediate relief from Cough or Inflamed Condition of the Throat.

DRESS PLAN HELPS

EVENING FROCK MODELS

Tulle, net, chiffon and silk mouseline are the materials most often chosen for the modish evening frock, although exquisite models are evolved in the sheer supple satins, silks of satin luster, chiffon velvets and materials of the voile and marquisette classes. The satins and satin-finished silks are perhaps the most practical of the materials used for the purpose and adapt themselves perfectly to the prescribed lines, clinging and falling in the softest and straightest of folds, yet having body enough not to demand complicated foundations of silk and chiffon.

A satin evening frock of this type, slightly short of waist, with one of the new skirts falling straight and flap to the ground, a softly draped bodice, corsage relief or tucker of net or lace and a wealth of self-toned embroidery on bodice and skirt bottom, is as lovely a thing as one could wish to wear and will give excellent service and will clean admirably again and again, but the initial cost is great.

The fancy for evening gowns of dark hues endures, and dark grays, violet, purples, greens and blues are all made up for evening wear, being usually in sheer stuff and lightened by a touch of metal.

A tucker of silver fillet net embroidered in two shades of wine red lightens the bodice of an evening gown in wine dress chiffon with self color velvet bodice, the border taking the form of a floral design woven into the chiffon and an embroidered panel of this embroidered net runs down each side of the frock from armhole to hem.
The short sleeves are of draped chiffon over a close-fitting sleeve of embroidered net and there is a tucking neck and sleeve finish of white tulle.

Amber or gold-lined chiffon, or rather sheer stuff trimmed in gold color net embroidered in gold, is a favorite idea for the evening frock and often the embroidery is in a highly lustrous silk, giving almost the effect of metallic gold rather than in gold thread. Much silver and gold is used but seldom in barbaric guise, the duller metallic tones being preferred and fine filigree and cobweb laces, gold nets or gold embroidery on net being selected in place of the more spectacular and glittering metalline effects.

Tiny gold or silver lace beadings, with or without the narrowest and finest of metallic lace edgings, are frequently used as finishing for tulle or net tuckers, baby ribbon being run through this beading to draw the tucker up snugly. Upon sheer evening gowns a deep hem of satin or velvet is a saving clause, in addition to being important as a weight to drag the airy folds down into modish lines. Elaborate heavy embroidery, lace, etc., is substituted for the plain satin or chiffon velvet hem in the more costly frocks, but even many of the most admired French models show the simpler weighting.

Salome velvet, almost as sheer and supple as Liberty satin, is fashioned into gorgeous evening gowns, usually of princess silhouette, and the inevitable embroidered net is usually the chosen trimming, with lace in combination. One wonderful gown was of silver-gray velvet, absolutely plain skirt, but with its bodice laden with exquisite embroideries in dull silver or gray net.

The skirt lines of the ultra-fashionable evening skirt are like those of the cloth skirt and their drop skirts are as clinging and unsubstantial as those connected with the Paquin princess skirt. Just how one is to dance in these limp, long, feet-entangling draperies it is difficult to see, but doubtless the younger generation will wear shorter dance frocks and petticoats that will bear exhibition.

A box of Aligretti's chocolate creams from Benson, Smith & Co., Ltd., will settle all difficulties. There is no candy that equals this.

RUNAWAY MATCH AT
ORPHEUM TONIGHT

"A Runaway Match" will be given its last presentation tonight at the Orpheum, and all Honolulu theatergoers who have not yet seen the funny farce and enjoyed a good laugh at its witty lines and humorous situations should not fail to take advantage of this last opportunity. The screen scene from "The School for Scandal" will again be played as a curtain-raiser.

Tomorrow night a stirring drama entitled "Down by the Sea" is to be played. It is a play of great strength, concerning two men who bear a striking resemblance to each other. The resemblance does not, however, extend beyond the surface, one of them being an escaped convict and the other a gentleman. There is plenty of comedy in the piece, which is sure to satisfy all lovers of melodrama.

POLICE MAKE
FEW ARRESTS

John Furst, an ex-sailor, is spending his New Year's Day in the police station tanks because of a misguided attempt to save another gentleman from arrest. It appears that last evening at about 9 o'clock Officers Sam Kalua and Ed. Like placed one E. Knudsen under arrest at the corner of Beretania and King streets on a charge of assault and battery on a Chinese. Furst attempted to prevent the officers from taking the prisoner into custody, and the result was that he had to join his friend in a trip to the station, where a charge of obstructing justice was entered against him.

Outside of this, the New Year has been uncommonly free from arrests, one drunk and two violators of the swill ordinance constituting the record on the receiving station blotter this forenoon.
